

Concerts to celebrate the end of Hull Savoyard's 80th Anniversary year

Saturday, 01 November 2014 19:25

The following concerts are to celebrate the end of Hull Savoyard's 80th anniversary year.

21st November 2014 Cottingham Civic Hall. Cottingham.

22nd November 2014 Tickton Little Theatre, Tickton. Tickton Little Theatre, Tickton.

28th November 2014 Beverley Memorial Hall, Lairgate, Beverley.

Tickets - £7.00 available at the door.

For details tel: 01482 876918

The first half of the concert will present a selection of Gilbert and Sullivan songs from a selection of their operas. The second half of the concerts will be a costumed production of the ever popular Trial by Jury, the story for this is as follows;

The court assembles for the sad case of Edwin, sued by Angelina for breach of promise of marriage. The usher urges the jurymen to be impartial; but when Edwin states his case, saying that he has fallen in love with someone else, the jury is unconvinced. The learned judge hurries in, mistakenly believing this to be a murder trial. He explains to the court the rather dubious route that led him to become a judge. Angelina then arrives with her family, pathetically still wearing her wedding dress. She confides that she is really after Edwin's money but the court is completely taken in by her theatrical declarations of love. Led by her crafty counsel, Angelina literally throws herself on the mercy of the foreman and then the judge. Edwin tries hard to extricate himself by first suggesting a compromise, that he will marry both Angelina and his new love, and then saying that Angelina is lucky to be rid of him as he is violent when drunk. But this only leads to more objections.

In a hurry to get away, the judge suggests one final solution and that is _____?